Catherine Marinis-Yaqub, Political Risk Analyst

Catherine Marinis-Yaqub is a Principal in Control Risks' Crisis and Security Consulting practice based in New York. Catherine oversees key client relationships in the risk and business resilience arena including insider risk, security risk management, and strategic risk analysis. She works with Control Risks' multidisciplinary teams to deliver best-in-class insider risk services, specializing in intellectual and critical asset protection. Catherine has established end-to-end insider risk management programs and conducted multiple insider risk assessments for companies across various industries.

Catherine spent 11 years in US federal service conducting global national security operations as an Operations Officer for the CIA and DIA, and as an Intelligence Analyst at the FBI's Joint Terrorism Task Force where she worked counterterrorism, extraterritorial and counterintelligence investigations including espionage cases. Prior to joining Control Risks, Catherine served in advisory roles at boutique consultancies and at PwC, Deloitte, and BearingPoint as a management consultant to Intelligence Community clients. While at PwC, Catherine worked in the Anti-Corruption and Corporate Intelligence practice providing due diligence services to Fortune 500 companies.

Catherine holds a Bachelor of Science degree in political science and international relations from Florida State University and a Master of Arts in international affairs from the School of International Service at The American University, Washington, DC. Catherine has an Insider Vulnerability Assessor Certification from Carnegie Mellon University's CERT Program.
